2015 Catalog  $3.00  daylilygarden.com
The larger size A will usually bloom the first season after planting. The starter size B is smaller, and will generally bloom in its second season.

Rule of thumb:
Most daylilies will bloom on two large fans.

We give you the option of picking the size you want. Size A is bigger, quicker to establish and bloom, and best for quick results. Choose the smaller B size for growing on or mass plantings.

We have observed that fewer and fewer people are ordering via the postal mail. We still are happy to fill orders that way but are no longer including an order form.

If you would like to mail in an order, just use a blank piece of paper and calculate as described below. Shipping totals are based on a dollar amount and should be easy to figure. If credit card is supplied as payment we can figure it all for you and of course invoice you when we ship.

As one might suspect there are many, many more cultivars available online. And in fact there are many yet undiscovered gems on the farm that only a traveller coming in person can discover.

We are a small nursery and as such have a hard time keeping up with phone calls, give us a call but please be patient, we are probably outside digging!

Another season is approaching! It will be an exciting season, with lots of newly propagated cultivars and maturing seedlings. We’re working on a new website with a better layout. As always we’re working on lots of new hybrids. We’re particularly interested daylilies that push the envelope: extra talls, extra earlies and daylilies with unusual characteristics such as dark scapes.

Of course we are growing and propagating many daylilies through out the color spectrum as well. As always one main focus is hardiness and strong growth. Daylilies grown in Vermont in average garden soil with minimal pampering, it they can grow here imagine how they’ll do in your garden with just a bit more attention!

Chris Darrow

Name A Daylily:
We are offering customers to name a daylily. The process is simple, just contact us about it or check online. The cost is $100.00 for naming and typically $30 for a blooming size plant (“A” size). You will get a certificate and the plant will be officially registered with your name choice. The prefix Olallie will be added and there is restrictions on length and words used. contacts us for more information

Spring 2016

Some of our 2015 hybrids selected for introduction. A great selection of colors, forms, and eyezones.

This mass of daylilies are many of our newer cultivars including daylilies from Gossard, Derrow, Huben and others. Spiders, Giant eyezones and reblooming reds are some of the attributes we are working on.

Some of our 2015 hybrids selected for introduction. A great selection of colors, forms, and eyezones.

Packing Fresh Dug Daylilies!

You’ll not find many nurseries much less daylily nurseries like Olallie Daylily Gardens. It’s a family and community affair. Every year people from around the area come to work here! We’re a small local farm that’s passionate about the land, plants, flowers and sharing the experience with others! Whether your a customer, employee or just a visitor you’ll be treated with kindness, care and consideration. And please if you can take your shoe off and walk barefoot for a bit

Chris spends most his summer barefoot!

Ellen Darrow continues to produce an amazing variety of art. Her works include graphics on ceramic pots and tiles as well as collages and pastels and more.

Irises

Many Iris species make great complements to daylilies. Their bloomtime is such to augment early bloom season of daylilies and the blue, purple and white shades are perfect for offsetting the yellows and golds of the daylilies.

Select hardy Perennials add variation to any planting, both in texture and form as well as color. We grow hundreds of perennials here on Olallie Farm. In fact many of our daylily beds are full other other perennials as well!

Handling Iris

Siberian and Japanese Iris have fine fibrous roots systems which makes them susceptible to drying out. Be sure to not let the roots dry in the sun and keep them moist before and after planting.

NIGHT BREEZE

ea June “Flwr 40” Ht
The intensely dark purple blooms appear high above thin twisted foliage in a dark green shade. A $17.00

Iris ensata (Japanese Iris)

Japanese Iris while not as long lived as Siberian Iris are worth growing for a number of reasons. Foremost is their tenes of bloom. Here in Vermont they bloom from Early July to the end of July. The predominate blue and purple coloration make for cool contrasts to July’s hot colors. And some of the more exotic color patterns are amazing!

PLAINS IRIS

Specialty Siberian Iris

There are many new and interesting colors and shades being developed for Siberian Iris. Pink shades, Yellows and more. We have many different examples of these. Most are in short supply. Contact us or check our website for availability.
Siberian Iris
The main reason for growing Siberian Iris, beside the beautiful colors, is their hardiness and longevity which make them perfect complements to Daylilies. Iris siberica grows in most garden soil types with at least a half a day of sun. We have found the Siberians to be tolerant of both extremely wet soils and droughty soils. Performance and increase are best in soils on the wet side. Siberian Iris are resentful of transplanting and as such generally take a whole season of growth before blooming.

We grow over 75 varieties of Siberian Iris contact or visit us to see what other beauties we might have available!

Early or First Bloomers
Our early blooming daylilies are as reliable and hardy as bulbs, they guarantee early season color. They can be treated just like a bulb for predictable early bloom. An additional bonus is these earlys can be used to cover the dying foliage of early spring bulbs. In Vermont, the gold and yellow shades of the earlies usually coincide with Siberian Iris complementing the blues and purples beautifully.

Extra Early Species
These two species are some of the earliest to bloom! Strong growing and with beautiful foliage as well as blooms. The perfect complement to Iris and other early perennials.

Species Daylilies
The Hemerocallis species are often overlooked. Each exhibits wonderful garden characteristics, particularly suited for cottage gardens, wild plantings, collections, and other less formal gardens. As with all daylilies, they provide a hardy long-lived backbone to any garden, yet are understated and so meld well with other plants. They are so different from many of the newer cultivars that they are quite eye catching.

Early Blooming Species
More great daylilies for the beginning of the season

H. flava major

Late Bloomers

Late blooming daylilies are rare. Thanks to Dr. Darrow's collecting and extensive breeding we have a large collection of lates. Beginning as summer winds down, they are in full bloom when the Vermont foliage begins to turn. Many bloom right up to hard frost. They glow in the autumn sun, bringing a glorious end to the flower season.

Stella & Friends-The Stella D’Oro Story

Stella D’Oro (Jablonski, 1975) is probably the best known daylily in the US. Developed in the early 1970’s, Stella was considered a breakthrough in daylily hybridizing because of its continuous bloom. Desirable attributes of moderate size, simple color, and rebloom make it a daylily of choice for many landscape plantings. Additionally, its small stature and excellent performance make it an ideal candidate for container growing. Though Stella was the first of its kind, it is no longer alone.

Muddy feet? Chris has the privilege of spending a large portion of his work day outside and barefoot. In 2015 he worked barefoot for well over 100 days. A crazy but wonderful perk for a job!
Olallie Cultivars

There are 59 Olallie cultivars, developed by Dr. George Darrow. Over the twenty years or so in which Dr. Darrow collected and hybridized daylilies, he worked improving on tetraploid daylilies, getting good saturated color and consistent performance. His best work was in the area of late and extra late bloomers. Dr. Darrow’s hybridizing program which began in 1957 developed over 50 varieties.

Early Olallie Daylilies

Extending Peak Season: Through the development of greater diversity of early color, we have increased the length and earliness of peak season. Early here are being developed yearly. More early cultivars available online and at the farm.

Three great small blooming Olallies for 10+ weeks of bloom. Many other miniatures in development are good for this too!

VT CANARY GIANT
It July 7” Flwr 32” Ht tet D 9 b/s
Long undulating tepals of bright canary yellow on tall sturdy scapes. The pure bright color makes it glow. The petals and sepals are flat and smooth which increases the flower’s showiness.
A $15.00   B $11.00

VT SUNNYBROOK FARM
mid July 6” Flwr 30” Ht tet D 10 b/s
Large blossoms of banana yellow with creped texture. Single fans each produce scapes. Shorter scapes produce a more compact blooming clump. Good grower.
A $16.00   B $11.70

OLALLIE GEORGE DARROW
It July 7” Flwr 22” Ht tet D frag 10 b/s
Dr Darrow’s namesake. Huge blooms of bright pure orange sorbet with a tiny lime throat. The result is a flower of pure smooth pale orange gold coloration. Featuring strong scapes and huge fans. Some rebloom too!
A $19.00   B $13.90

VT OLALLIE QUINN
mid July 7” Flwr 36” Ht tet D 23 b/s
Fantastic bud-builder of 6 or more weeks. Amber and yellow bicolor blooms have a spider-like form.
A $28.00   B $20.50

VT GOLD SIGHTS
mid Aug 6” Flwr 38” Ht dip 19 b/s BB
Nugget gold on tall scapes with excellent bud count. Fast increaser. Late summer start, bud building all the way through September here. Ironclad performer.
A $16.00   B $11.70
Daylily Dynamos
These are six daylilies that are big, vigorous plants that increase fast, have large blooms and quickly create massive weed resistant clumps. Even here in Vermont these are the go to plants for care free landscaping.

VT PING
mid July 8" Flwr 38" Ht tet D 7 b/s
Huge golden blooms measure eight inches across. Lighter gold midribs and ruffling add pizzaz. Astonishing because of its sheer size. An enormous plant all around.
A  $22.00  B  $16.10

VT SARAJEVO
mid July 7" Flwr 38" Ht tet  14 b/s
Dashing light yellow with dark green throat. Large form, with over a dozen buds on one stem. A good choice for tall color in midsummer. Great performer!
A  $18.00  B  $13.20

VT MAGENTA QUEEN
ea Aug 6" Flwr 38" Ht tet  17 b/s
A giant dynamite in the garden. Raspberry candy color with dark red vienation. The tiny throat is dark green. Waxy blossoms are substantial on tall regal stems. With a bud count of 17, this daylily really puts on a show. Good increaser.
A  $19.00  B  $13.90

OLALLIE ARTLEY (was 13-05)
lt June 6.5" Flwr 36" Ht  10 b/s
Extra big spidery bloom for the early season. Pale cream yellow star-shaped blooms. Perfect accent plant to complement June blooming perennials. A CSD creation.
A  $17.00  B  $12.50

VT LACY LUCY
mid July 6" Flwr 38" Ht tet D 7 b/s
Apricot sorbet with creamy pink on large slightly ruffled blossoms. The plants themselves are so large it only takes one fan to produce a scape. 5 weeks of bloom in 2005.
A  $17.00  B  $12.50
Miniature Cultivars

Virtually all are small to tiny eyed cultivars in shades of pink, lavender, and red. They are wonderful additions to smaller gardens as showpiece plants. Delicate ruffling is typical.

Pinks

The shades run from baby pinks all the way to deep rose. Pink Daylilies are some of the most distinctive and vibrant of the colors found in daylilies. The subtle differences of the shades and hues make collecting the different cultivars worth trying. Pink daylilies go well with near white daylilies.
Purples, Lavenders & Wines
Although some daylilies do exhibit blue tones, there are no true blues or royal purples as with Iris. Daylily purples come in a range from pale lilac to rich violets to deep concord grape.
